—'Peace' Conference—

Two Are Ordered To Leave

Immigration Officials Send Canadians Home

NEW YORK—(AP)—Two Canadians were seized at the controversial "peace conference" and ordered Saturday to return immediately to their home country after immigration authorities questioned them.

A third Canadian also taken into custody was permitted to remain. Authorities would only say they were questioned concerning communist activities.

Meanwhile, the keynote session of the parley, which has attracted intellectuals from many countries, got under way at Carnegie hall with 1,500 persons present.

Soviet, U. S. Blamed.
Speakers blamed both Russia and the United States for the cold war and urged President Truman to accept Soviet Premier Joseph Stalin's bid to talk peace.

About 100 pickets marched in protest of the meeting outside the hall but there was no disorder. The state department has charged the parley is a "sounding board for communist propaganda." The sponsors deny this.

The three Canadians were seized quietly last night at the banquet in the grand ballroom of the Hotel Waldorf-Astoria which was the meeting's first function. After questioning federal agents said John Goss and Mrs. Margaret Fairley were allowed to return voluntarily to Canada.

One Remains.
Goss was identified as an actor and theater director. He sat on the dias at the banquet and was introduced as an honored guest. Conference officials said he was the only one of the three who was a delegate.

Mrs. Fairley was described as a member of the cultural committee of the Canadian labor-progressive (communist) party. The third Canadian picked up was Barker Fairley, Mrs. Fairley's husband, named as vice president of the Canadian council of American-Soviet friendship.

The government said he was allowed to remain since he is a visiting guest professor at Columbia university.

Shapley Speaker.
Dr. Harlow Shapley, Harvard university astronomer and conference chairman, told the 1,500 persons at Carnegie hall that Russia and the United States "both are at fault" in the cold war.

"The two greatest nations are so obsessed by pointing out each other's shortcomings that they ignore their own," he declared.

Shapley said "No thoughtful leader believes today that anyone can win a third world war," and added "The generals know civilization will die with the attempt to win a third world war."

State Lifting Some Highway Load Limits
... At Midnight

Highway department load limit restrictions on many bituminous-surface routes in northern and western Nebraska will be lifted at midnight tonight.

At the same time two sections of road in the northeast part of the state will be added to the posted list.

State Engineer F. H. Klietsch, who made a personal inspection tour of the restricted highways, said the limits would be removed at midnight from all but the following:

No. 2—Mullen to Alliance, and from west junction with No. 19 at Alliance to Hemingford.
No. 19—West junction with No. 87 north to Chadron, and from west junction with No. 29 west of Chadron to the South Dakota line.

No. 20—Chadron to Hay Springs, junction with No. 83 southeast of Valentine to Johnston; Stuart to junction with No. 281 north of O'Neill, junction with No. 275 east to junction with No. 13, and Plainville to west junction with No. 81.

No. 81—West junction with No. 20 to junction with No. 84.
No. 15—Hartington to junction with No. 29.

Sub-grade conditions caused new restrictions to be placed on the following roads:

No. 24—Stanton to junction with No. 275.
No. 71—Oakland to Winnebago.

The load limit on restricted roads is 12,000 pounds per axle with a further restriction of 400 pounds per inch-width of tire.

2 Nebraska Men Facing Fraud Charge

Securities Deals Said To Involve About $600,000

11-Count Indictment

OMAHA—(AP)—Willis E. (Chili) Brazda, 40, Fremont, Neb., was free on bond today, following arrest on federal charges involving allegedly forged and counterfeit mortgages and securities.

U. S. district Attorney Joseph T. Votava said charges were contained in an 11-count secret indictment returned Thursday by a federal grand jury. The same indictment was returned against Warren M. Scherer, 38, implement dealer at Pilger, Neb.

Bernard Boyle and Fred White, attorneys for Scherer, said Scherer will surrender Monday and appear before Commissioner Cunningham in Omaha.

The first count charges conspiracy to transport, with fraudulent intent, certain false, forged and counterfeit securities from Fremont to Kansas City, Mo. Six counts charge actual transportation of such documents from Fremont to Kansas City and the last four charge use of the mails to defraud.

Votava said the allegedly false securities were discounted to the First Bancredit Corporation, St. Paul, Minn., through its branch in Kansas City.

The case came to light, he said, when Scherer visited the corporation in St. Paul in April of 1948 and voluntarily related the details.

Most Of Money Recovered.

Votava said the corporation's investigation showed it had purchased about $600,000 worth of fraudulent notes and mortgages but that most of the money had been recovered. Some of the loss was made up by the corporation's insurer, Lloyd's of London, he said.

Scherer had operated a business in cars, tractors and farm machinery at Pilger since the war's end. Votava said Scherer's attorney advised him Scherer will surrender voluntarily to the charges against him.

The government contends, Votava said, that when Scherer ran low on funds, he and Brazda made out mortgages on non-existent automobiles, tractors and machinery, signing either Scherer's name or that of a non-existent person, Brazda, who has operated a finance company in Fremont, then disposed of the documents to the First Bancredit corporation's Kansas City branch, according to the indictment.

Brazda was brought before U. S. Commissioner M. O. Cunningham yesterday and released on $2,500 cash bond.

Net Loss $19,715.

Cornelius Connolly, Omaha attorney for Lloyd's of London, said the Bancredit corporation's total loss was $894,658. Of this, Lloyd's made up $499,950 and an additional $75,000 was recovered from another insurance firm, St. Paul-Mercury Indemnity Co. The final net loss was $19,715.68, Connolly said.

The first hint of the case came last July when the First Bancredit corporation disclosed it had unwittingly purchased forged and fraudulent notes and mortgages over a three-year period. The amount involved then was placed at $615,000. The July announcement did not say where the notes and mortgages originated.

Sold Business Last Summer.

Brazda moved to Fremont from West Point in 1927. He had been associated with loan and finance companies and recently operated the Mutual Loan and Finance company in Fremont. He sold this business in June, 1948, to the Securities Acceptance Corporation of Omaha.

Brazda was graduated from Midland college in Fremont and also attended Cornell university.

His name was placed on the ballot as an independent candidate for congress in the general election of 1944. He was a petition candidate against Rep. Earl Kenna in 1948.

Wm. Walker 2nd To File For Mayor

Wants Regulation Of Public Service Firms

William L. Walker, Lincoln attorney, Saturday became the second candidate for mayor with the filing of petitions carrying the signatures of 242 persons.

Walker announced that he would campaign for "firm and reasonable regulation" of public service companies, expansion of recreation facilities, encouragement of low-cost housing construction, and immediate improvement of the streets.

Also included in an 11-point platform on which he will campaign were planks calling for a program to produce necessary revenue to enable the city properly to expand its services and encouragement of full co-operation with the county government to eliminate so far as possible duplication of facilities.

"If elected mayor of Lincoln, I shall exert untiring efforts to ward vigorously and energetically carrying out the policies of the city government to confer the greatest benefits, at minimum cost, to the taxpayers and citizens," he said.

Other points in Walker's platform:

Sympathetic and careful consideration of the problems of every person which are submitted to the council and mayor for decision within limits of the law.

Careful selection of all appointees for the numerous managers, boards, officers and assistants who will co-operate to carry out policies of the city council and mayor.

To put forth all efforts and attract and induce more permanent industry to locate in Lincoln and vicinity and to retain the industrial plants in Lincoln.

Promote the greatest harmony in relations between management and labor, and improve to the greatest extent quality of service rendered and working conditions of employees.

Seek establishment of all necessary regulations for protection of citizens and their property and to insist on the reasonable enforcement of all provisions of the charter and ordinances.

A resident of Lincoln for over 20 years, Walker is married and has four children. He graduated from the University of Nebraska in 1934 and has practiced law here for 14 years.

He is a member of the chamber of commerce, Grace Methodist church, the Masonic lodge, Scottish Rite and Shrine, president of the Masonic News board, and member of the Danish Brotherhood of America. He is serving his third year as president of Belmont Community center.

Await Autopsy Report In Finding Of Baby's Body

... Discovered In Box

An investigation into the death of a new-born baby girl whose body was discovered near a garbage container Friday afternoon in 3100 block on South street was being pressed Saturday by County Attorney Frederick H. Wagener.

Identity of the child and its mother have already been learned, Wagener stated. But he said no decision on whether an inquest will be held will be made until next week when he is to receive a written autopsy report by Dr. A. F. Taborsky, county physician, and Dr. Frank Tanner.

The baby was apparently born Friday, Wagener reported. Garbage Collector Jacob Fuss, jr., route six, who was making his usual collections on the south side, found the baby at 5:40 p. m. Friday. He immediately took the body, which was in a small cardboard box, to the police station.

In a statement released early Saturday, Wagener stated that "no decision can be made whether an inquest will be held or what future action will be taken until the autopsy is received."

"Investigation disclosed that the baby was put in the container and set by the garbage can Friday. The baby had appearance of having been of normal birth."

3 THREATENED BY ASSAILANT WITH A KNIFE
... Youth Being Held

A 23-year-old student from Sabathia Kas, who early Saturday threatened two men and one woman with a knife, was being held on an open charge in the city jail today.

The student was booked by police after being checked at a local hospital for possible injuries.

According to information furnished by witnesses to the police, the assailant first threatened A. R. Shonka, of Dwight, Neb., and a friend at 3 a. m. The pair told police they were parked at Eleventh and F street, when a man appeared and began slashing at the window of the car with a knife.

Later, Ralph Kirmeler, 1209 Peach, notified police that a man, whom he later identified as the student, had threatened him with a knife when he refused the man's request for gasoline.

Police reported that the student, after being arrested, told about being slugged by a hitch hiker but later admitted that the story was fabricated. Police described the youth as very studious and subject to migraine headaches.

Decontrol By State Possible

Committee Must Face Increase Compromise

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Senate-house conferees Saturday agreed on a flat 15-month extension of federal rent controls.

The conference committee agreed last night on a provision which lets states, cities, towns and villages get rid of rent curbs if the state governor approves.

The conferees are seeking to iron out differences between rent control bills passed by the house and senate. They have not yet reached an agreement on what to do about rent increases. Senator Sparkman (D-Ala.) called that "the toughest nut of all" to crack.

House Of Provision.
The present rent law expires next Thursday, March 31. The house passed a bill to continue controls 15 months, through June 30, 1950. The senate measure called for a 12-to-15 month continuation.

Senator Maybank (D-SC) said the senate conferees agreed to adopt the house provision because the house group yielded Friday and took the senate's version of "home rule" decontrol.

Maybank said he expected the conferees either will knock out the rent increase provisions of both the house and senate bills, or decide to put them both in the final version.

No Decontrol Rush.
However, an Associated Press survey indicated there would be no general rush by local communities to get rid of controls under such a law. The check showed many city officials and several governors in favor of continued controls.

Few spoke out for immediate junking of the curbs, although in Boise, Idaho, Mayor Potter P. Howard said: "I believe we have enough housing, so there's no further necessity for rent controls in Boise."

The senate bill calls for some rent increases up to 10 per cent, in two five per cent steps. Under the house measure, the government would have to fix rent ceilings "so far as practicable" at a level to assure landlords "a reasonable return on the reasonable value" of their property.

Signing Predicted.
Rep. Paul Brown (D-Ga.), sponsor of that provision in the house, is a member of the conference committee. Other members reported that Brown was ready to wage a finish fight for the reasonable value section.

Sparkman said it had been suggested that both the house and the senate provisions dealing with rent increases be kept in the final bill. No decision was reached at Friday's meetings.

Sparkman, chief of the senate group, said the compromise bill is better as it stands now than the separate bills passed by the two houses. He predicted that President Truman will sign it when it gets to the White House, probably early next week.

Mr. Truman asked for a two-year extension and tighter controls. The bill he gets won't measure up on either count.

Pullman Strike Postponed After Action By Board

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The national mediation board said Saturday it has intervened in a nationwide strike of Pullman conductors set for March 31. This means an indefinite postponement of the walkout.

If the dispute is not settled and the 2,100 Pullman conductors eventually strike, it probably will mean a complete withdrawal of Pullman cars from the nation's trains.

The Order of Railway Conductors (ORC) called the strike. Its grievances are over pay and working conditions under the union's contracts.

A Lenten Season Prayer

GREAT PEACE HAVE THEY
Revelations 22:2. Read Isaiah 24:5.

Though in the world, those in the fellowship are not of the world. They have meat to eat that the world knows not of, though caught in the toils of life, they are given peace of mind through communion with Christ. As far as is possible they live peaceably with all men. They will harbor no ill toward others, and when others are offended with them, they will leave their gifts upon the altar and make all haste to win them back.

Further, Christians are called to the ministry of reconciliation to classes, races and nations. Violence and slaughter desecrating the earth are the obscene fruits of man's collective sin. We have snow winds of prejudice, ignorance, and fear; we have reaped whirlwinds of international catastrophe. A vast penitence must come over all the earth, and a forgiveness as complete, that the tree of life may grow from the soil of death. And the leaves of that tree are for the healing of the nations.

In the fellowship of Christ, what a variety of gifts, graces, and callings is dedicated to his ministry of peace! Some are prophets, some teachers, some apostles; and all their service ranks the same with God. How beautiful upon the mountains are their feet.

Let Us Pray: May the peace which passeth understanding keep pure our hearts and minds, and may the talents thou has given us be used for the blessing of all mankind. In Jesus' name. Amen.

OUT OF THE LOG JAM

Usually in the opening days of April, spring, in all its glory, comes to the Potomac. Washington, which needs very little excuse to emote, makes a tradition out of its cherry blooms, an annual reminder of a gift of trees lining the Potomac from the Japanese royal family when William Howard Taft occupied the White House.

One of the mildest winters in that region in many years tempted the cherry blooms to put in an exceptionally early appearance. Washington has been holding its breath, lest the blossoms wither and fall before a certain occasion. It is hoped that they will stay long enough to grace an historic hour. In pomp and ceremony early next week dignitaries, representing the nations of the North Atlantic pact, are expected to begin arriving in Washington. Britain's Bevan will be among them.

Senator Arthur Vandenberg made, perhaps, the most notable contribution to discussion of the North Atlantic pact when he pointed out that the words embodied in it are of no effect; that only the life which participating nations breathe into it will permit it to bear fruit. It is a timely note. Documents in themselves, no matter how carefully worded, do not guarantee peace to a world which desires peace. Peace comes through consistent support voicing the crystallized sentiment of the peoples of peaceful countries. The North Atlantic pact is not the end of trouble for America, or for any of the nations joining in; it is only the foundation bringing together peaceful, free peoples.

At the close of the week there was an unexpected development. By a vote of 31 to 1 the Nebraska Unicameral adopted a resolution sponsored by Senator Tom Davies, urging America's prompt ratification. This bold, splendid stroke by Senator Davies is the more heartening in view of the attitude of Senator Wherry, who has been making a noise suspiciously like opposition, and if not opposition, lack of enthusiasm. Once again a representative state body has indicated Nebraska's stand against isolation.

In the brief period since the full agreement was made public, Russia's troubles have multiplied. Not all of the headaches falling to the men in the Kremlin can be attributed solely to the North Atlantic pact. Back of the Iron Curtain in Czechoslovakia there was an uncertain outline of developments. Moscow's greatest trouble in satellite countries seems to be with the men handicapped to carry out the Kremlin's designs. Tito's defiance has had repercussions in neighboring lands. In Czechoslovakia Soviet anxiety seems to have mounted because Moscow's stooges, heading the Czech government, have not delivered according to expectations. The attempt to take over the churches has backfired. Midweek the cables disclosed that Czechoslovakia had staged a surprise move by sending a representative to the Vatican. The latter's appearance there did not arouse any optimism. It was interpreted as a move by the Czechoslovakian communist regime to place itself in a position to explain curtailments of religious freedom.

In neighboring Greece King Paul and his people seized upon the 128th anniversary of Greek independence to arouse the war-weary Greek soldiers to fresh efforts against communist partisans.

Within Russia itself there was more cabinet reshuffling. This time it was Russia's greatest soldier, Marshal Nikolai Bulganin, who got the boot. Often mentioned as a possible successor to Stalin, the Russians gave out very little in explaining the reason for Bulganin's replacement. His successor is Alexander Vasilovsky, 47, the right hand man of Marshal Zukov at Stalingrad, and later the commander of the Russian armies which fought the Japanese in Manchuria. London thought that it smelled something in this move. Bulganin has been known largely as a military administrator, Vasilovsky gained his reputation as a field commander. There wasn't much doubt from the trickles of news issuing out of Russia that a drastic reorganization was in progress in the Kremlin group. Some wishful thinking wrote it down as a purge, others interpreted it merely as a shake-up. But since March 4, in a 20-day period, four of the most powerful figures within Russia's inner circle have been relieved of their duties—Molotov, Bulganin, Mikoyan and Voznesensky. They were in charge of foreign policy, of the Soviet armed services, of foreign trade, and of state planning. Their successors were relatively lesser figures.

Paris had a report that the supreme council of national defense, which operates normally only in war time, has been re-established.

It was the west's enigma. Russia was telling nothing. But Paris had this comment: "The profound significance of these ministerial changes has not been made clear. We have reason to believe, meanwhile, that the departure of Bulganin is only one element in a vast reform in high Soviet military spheres."

On the more cheering side America was awakening to spring. Out in the country a week of warm skies and drying winds had worked wonders with fields of mud and unruly streams, which had been expected to give trouble, were surprisingly docile. Congress had its decks cleared for work. Spring usually brings on a restlessness among the members of the national assembly, who now 90 days after the 81st session convened find the bulk of labors ahead of them. Most of the delay can be attributed to the fact that key legislation found itself on a sidetrack during a 15-day filibuster in the senate. But committee hearings, particularly in the labor field, have been protracted so that the bills are slow in reaching the floor.

Mississippi's roolin' tootin' John Rankin, with victory at his fingertips, ended up in defeat. His pension bill was defeated by a vote of 203 to 207 in the house, one of the closest battles in more than a decade. Only one other vote of recent years has been as tight—that in 1940 on extending the draft, when it fell to the lot of former Nebraska Representative Charles McLaughlin of Omaha to cast the deciding ballot. Rankin has had a cup overflowing with dregs. He had hoped to regain a place on the House Un-American Activities committee only to find the door barred to him by his colleagues.

Time was running out on congress in the matter of rent controls. House and senate agreed to disagree in modified versions extended controls, appointed conference committees which got down to work, and which will write the final law in the next four days. Outwardly the sores arising from President Truman's demand for civil rights legislation had healed, and northern and southern democrats were speaking to each other again. But that development was more a matter of congressional courtesy than common purpose so that Mr. Truman's program still faced all the formidable barriers that threatened it.

There is no business at home during the summer to hasten congress from the heat of Washington. But all hopes of early adjournment are ended, and the chances are baseball in the major leagues will divide attention with legislators grinding away in the sultry capital throughout the summer.

Rested and refreshed President Truman came back to Washington from a Florida vacation, good-humored, conciliatory, and surprisingly mild-mannered for a man kicked around on Capitol Hill. Fred Vinson, his old friend, who spent part of the time with him in Florida, is given the credit for instructing Mr. Truman how to get along with congress. At week's-end a new strategy seemed to be taking shape. The president was wooing the freshman members of both houses. They are supposed to be seen and not heard. But apparently Mr. Truman thought there were enough new faces that if he could win their support the old veterans, snarly and irreconcilable, who have been running the show successfully would find themselves on a deserted stage.

It was a curious note reaching back to discussion of a second canal linking the Atlantic and the Pacific. Nicaragua's strong man, Anastasio Somoza, at week's end, announced he was willing to begin negotiations with the United States for the construction of a canal through his country. Under the theory that it is bad to have all of one's eggs in a single basket, talk of a sister canal to the Panama has been in progress since Theodore Roosevelt's time. Two might not cost more in the long run than the vital defenses essential to the Panama canal.

Youths Draw 9-Year Terms For Robbery

Consecutive Sentences

SEWARD, Neb.—Prison terms for three youths pleading guilty to robbery charges at Seward and Ashland were increased Friday by nine years each.

Marvin Holbert, 21, Lincoln, and John W. Stewart, 20, Ashland, were sentenced to nine years in the state penitentiary to run consecutive to a six-year term imposed earlier this week by District Judge H. Emerson Kjekstad at Wahoo. Gerald Hanson, 16, Lincoln, who was sentenced by Judge Kjekstad to a term of three to five years in the state reformatory, was also given nine years by Judge Landis to run "consecutive to any previous sentence."

The sentences resulted from two robberies March 9. The trio is charged with taking a few dollars from Mr. and Mrs. William H. Fillingim of Seward and of robbing Mrs. Lena Miller, 85, who lives near Ashland, of about $50.00.

In the information filed by Seward County Attorney Russell Soucheik, the youths are charged with feloniously entering the Fillingim home in an attempt to steal and ordering the Fillingims to hand over their money.

Chapter 6

Raff left Norton filling out the report and went on his way to his own room to get a coat. He had offered to drive Norton to the station and the two were to have a drink before the train pulled out. Just as he was about to get into the elevator that would take him down to the staff house, he heard his name paged over the loudspeaker system.

A man's voice came through, hurried, excited.

Raff frowned. "Yes," he answered. "About half past two, you say? Yes, that's quite likely I'm afraid not tonight. How about tomorrow morning about 9 o'clock? No, I think I'd like to come over there. That's quite all right. Thanks for calling."

He hung up and continued on his way to his room.

Ten minutes later he brought his car up to the main entrance where Norton was waiting. Norton got into the car and settled back on the seat. A weary sigh escaped him.

"I certainly could use a drink, Rafferty."

"Maybe you'd better have more than one, Chief."

Norton looked at him inquiringly.

"I had a call from Bray a few minutes ago. He seemed pretty excited. Wanted to know whether it was possible for Hubbard to have received the dose of phosgene at about half past two o'clock yesterday afternoon and yet show no symptoms at the time."

"Why, of course. That's exactly right," Norton's voice showed surprise. "Edema after phosgene administration doesn't occur until some twelve to fourteen hours later. And Hubbard died between two a. m. and six a. m. this morning."

"That's just what I told Bray—and he became even more excited. He said he knew just how and when Hubbard got the dose. Also, he had a pretty good idea as to who was responsible and that it was no accident!"

"Oh dear," was all Norton could say.

"He wanted to come up to see me tonight but I told him I'd be over there in the morning. I've decided I'd better take a look to see just what is going on over there. If there's no need for any publicity, so much the better. That was all right with Bray, too. He seems to think it was one of two people. He's pretty sure he'll have some proof in the morning."

"I brought along the university catalogue," Raff explained. "I'd like to look over the people on the staff there in the Bio Department. Thought you could give me the lowdown on some of the ones you know about."

They went into the station and Norton checked his bags. Then they went through the swinging door marked "Cocktails" and sat down at a small table. A waiter took their orders and the two men settled back to look at the catalogue. Raff thumbed through the pages.

"Let me see—Art, Architecture, Botany—whoo—here it is—Biology."

He showed the page to Norton. "Not a very large staff," said Norton; "one professor, one associate professor, and one instructor. And say, look at this, Raff. Emil Verek, M. D., animal surgeon. Surely that's not Verek from Prague?"

Raff said, "I don't know. I had heard that Verek escaped the Nazis but I thought he was in England."

"Well, what do you know?" he said. "Verek, Emil, Ph.D. Berlin 1920, M. D. Prague 1924: Queer that we haven't heard anything from him—and in the same town, too."

Raff said, "Doesn't it strike you that there is something fishy going on in that department? How about on starting at the top? What do you know about the late Jasper B. Hubbard, professor and chairman of the department?"

"Well, Hubbard came to the department about five years ago, when old Barker died. And—wait a minute. I remember now. Bray was associate professor at the time and was made chairman. Hubbard came here as associate professor. He came here from Midwestern U. and had an excellent record there. Well, after about a month Bray resigned from the chairmanship, saying that he was in poor health and that he couldn't take on the extra duties involved

Need Workers For Foreign Mission Fields

Church Leader Roth Tells 1,000 Students

A need for foreign mission workers was stressed by Arthur H. Roth, Seve-ti-Day Adventist leader, Friday night in an address to more than 1,000 students attending a youth conference in Lincoln.

"Prepare for Christian service in foreign lands," Roth urged as he outlined the needs and opportunities for mission workers in various parts of the world.

Roth, who is head of the inter-American division of the church, said that the growth of the Adventist church in Mexico, Central America, West Indies, the Caribbean islands, Panama, Venezuela and Columbia, has been at the rate of 100 members every week during 1948.

Success in foreign missions depends on the transformation of life by the spirit of God, Roth told the students. Men and women must be won to Christ and led to accept His promise of eternal salvation, he added.

Farmers Told To Check Purchases Of Fertilizer

For Low-Grades

Nebraska farmers were warned today by Rufus M. Howard, state director of agriculture, not to purchase unproven types of commercial fertilizer.

Howard said the department of agriculture and inspection had received reports that low-grade materials were being shipped into the state in large quantities for sale as valuable soil builders. The department is encouraging the use of fertilizers, however, and many good brands are being offered for sale, Howard stated.

"The department is checking every fertilizer as rapidly as a new brand is discovered," Howard said. "Unless the tests have been made farmers should make inquiry before making purchases of unknown brands."

"All fertilizers are required to be registered and the department is prepared to supply information if fertilizers offered for sale are meeting the requirements of the law."

Thief Takes $35 From Pensioner

The money was taken from the room of Mrs. Katherine Fushia, 932 P street, Thursday night while she was asleep, police reported. Mrs. Fushia told police she had just returned from cashing the check when she laid down because she was not feeling well. When she awoke her purse, billfold and money were gone.

Sage New Head Scotts Bluff Legion Group

Mrs. Glenn Elected Auxiliary Chairman

MORRILL, Neb.—(AP)—Lloyd Sage of Minatare, World war II veteran, today had been elected Scotts Bluff county commander of the American Legion.

Sage, who was elected at a meeting last night, succeeds Harley Cawthra of Morrill. Mrs. Oak Glenn of Morrill was named county chairman of the auxiliary, succeeding Mrs. George Balderson of Minatare.

Praises Unit.

Speakers included Richard McNamara of Lincoln, state legion commander, who praised the Scotts Bluff county Legion for its part in the establishment of special school facilities for handicapped children.

McNamara also commended the Legion unit for encouraging enactment of a state statute for training of handicapped children in all parts of Nebraska.

Among the major objectives of the Legion, he went on, are aid for all children, whether or not their fathers are veterans, and to route communism from America.

McNamara said if the nation's leadership had listened to the Legion's demands of the period from 1920 to 1939 for stronger defense, there "would have been no World War II."

Lytle Poole of Torrington, Wyoming state commander, was a speaker at the meeting. He argued that Legion members push membership drives as a way to combat communism and strengthen Americanism.

Expansion Plans Discussed For N.U. Extension Service

The University of Nebraska agricultural extension service program committee made preliminary plans for furthering the development of extension's educational projects at a meeting on the college of agriculture campus.

The planning committee is composed of county agricultural agents, supervisors, administrators and specialists at the university. With A. H. Maunders, supervisor of extension programs, presiding, the committee discussed adjustments in educational planning to meet new developments. The new developments include the economic outlook, new research, trends in family life, progress of soil conservation, Missouri basin development program, increase in irrigation, and rural electrification, adjustments in farm organization, flood control and increased interest in soil fertility.

Dean W. V. Lambert of the agricultural college advised the group to think in terms of a unified program in the interests of the farm family, combining education and research.

Nebraska Averages $215,600 Per Month

Payments under the old-age and survivors insurance program in Nebraska and Lancaster county have reached all-time highs, Joseph Sewall, manager of the Lincoln office of the Social Security administration, announced today.

For Nebraska, about 12,000 persons are receiving payments at an average rate of $215,600 per month.

In Lancaster county $27,726 per month is being received by 1,496 persons. Of this total, 971 persons are retired wage earners and their wives over 65 years of age while 525 are children, widows or dependent parents of deceased wage earners.

These figures represent a 15 per cent increase on both state and Lancaster county levels as compared a year ago, Sewall said. On a national level, about 2,300,000 persons are receiving payments at an average monthly rate of 46 million dollars. This also represents an all-time high, he said.

Figures for neighboring counties are:

Gage—262 persons, $1,650

Saline—98 persons, $1,528

Seward—60 persons, $288

Johnson—32 persons, $491

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
